FROM OUR QUINTESSENTIALLY
ENGLISH CONSERVATORIES TO...

OUR CLASSICAL ORANGERIES

This style of building is sophisticated and stylish with decorative pillars, ornate cornice details, single or multiple lantern roofs and timber finishes in various soft shades of colour as well as traditional white.

QUAYSIDE
ORANGERIES
HERITAGE ELEGANCE

The name reflects the original use of the building as a place where citrus trees were over wintered in tubs under cover, surviving through harsh frosts. They were frequently found in the grounds of fashionable residences from the 17th to the 19th century.

A frequently asked question “what is the difference between an Orangery and a Conservatory?”

The main technical difference relates to how the roof of each is constructed. A very simple differentiation is that a conservatory has the majority of its roof glazed, whereas an orangery tends to have a solid perimeter roof with roof lanterns to allow light in.

This style of building has decorative pillars, ornate cornice details, single or multiple lantern roofs and timber finishes in various soft shades of colour as well as traditional white, making it a classic and beautiful addition to an existing building.

QUAYSIDE DOORS

TIME TO MAKE AN ENTRANCE

Entrance Doors
There are many styles and colours available to upgrade your home. Wooden entrance doors can range from the cottage style with traditional tongue and groove finish, with the option of a small glass window, to partially glazed top sections with raised and fielded panels below. Glazing options including coloured, obscure and etched.

Timber French Doors
This traditional style of door is popular for providing access into the garden whilst also providing security and function. They are usually set with uniform glass panels, allowing natural light into the house without sacrificing space or efficiency. They can be as plain or as decorative as you wish them to be. Ideal for creating a cosy living space in the winter, or opening up a room in the summer to enjoy the garden.

Folding Sliding Doors
Providing a more modern versatile and creative solution if you are replacing existing doors or planning a new project. Designed to open either outwards or inwards and with a selection of panel options. Bring the great outdoors "indoors" using crafted timber folding sliding doors to create a spacious feel to your living area.

Windows

Timber windows, like doors, are an important part of your home and can add or detract from its character. When replacing windows, consideration should be given to the style of the house, and for the planning of upstairs fire escape windows where necessary.

We manufacture a wide range of styles, and as with all our products, they can be finished in a multitude of colours.

QUAYSIDE GARDEN ROOMS

DESIGNED WITH A SOLID ROOF

Garden Rooms

Designed with Quayside timber windows and doors and a thermally efficient tiled roof that regulates the room temperature improving your energy efficiency.

Perfect for creating a private sanctuary or an entertaining space with a holiday-at-home atmosphere.

QUAYSIDE ROOF LANTERNS

LET THE LIGHT FLOOD IN

Roof Lanterns

Incorporated into any new or existing flat roof structure, a bespoke hardwood lantern roof from Quayside Conservatories will allow natural light to flood into your room. Lantern roofs are increasingly being included in projects by designers and architects. Applications can include kitchen extensions, stairwells, shops, restaurants and offices. They have the advantage of being maintenance free with the design of the powdered coated, aluminium roof capping's.

Our timber frame lantern roofs are individually made by our craftsman to the same standards and specification as all our other quality products.

QUAYSIDE GREEN HOUSES

A GARDNERS DREAM

Our bespoke timber framed greenhouses compliment any property whether they are an extension to a house or a haven in the garden. Even on the coldest of days when the sun is shining, they are a place to potter or just relax. Roof vents control the heat in the hotter months of the year and create the perfect climate for plants and people alike.
